

How to Lay up Money for a Rainy Day.

A number of years ago Charles and Clara were married in the city of New York. Charles was wealthy and in good business—very comfortable circumstances for a young man, which tended, of course, to develop his naturally liberal disposition. Feeling thus happy and independent of the world's frowns, he proposed to his youthful bride on day during the honeymoon, to give her five thousand dollars for every "action of his house" which should be engrossed upon the family tree—an arrangement, as may be supposed, to which the lovey Clara made no slight objection. Time passed on—Charles faithfully performing his agreement; and making no inquiries as to the disposition of the money by his better half, until they had been married some ten years; when fortune, which had hitherto smiled with constancy, suddenly turned her back and left him apparently high and dry among the brokers of Wall Street. When the crisis had arrived, he went home with a heavy heart, to announce the sad news to his wife, that he was an irretrievably ruined man—that his property had all gone to satisfy his creditors, and nothing was left. "Not exactly so bad as that, my dear," said Clara. "Wait a minute, and see what I have been doing." Thus saying, she ran up stairs, and soon returned with a deal, in her own name; of one half of an elegant block of houses in the neighborhood, worth thirty thousand dollars. "You see I have been industrious," continued she, "and have laid up something for a rainy day. If you had been as smart as your brother, we might have had the whole block, by this time."

PRACTICAL ASTRONOMY.—A schoolmaster out West has invented an ingenious planter to teach the boys and girls of his school. The largest and laziest boy, for instance, was made to take a position in the centre of the room, representing the sun, round whom was marked upon the floor, the orbits of the different planets. A small red-headed boy was made to represent Mars, while a bright-eyed girl a little larger, represented Venus; another boy that of Mercury, another that of the earth, &c., and each was placed in his proper orbit.

When all was ready, the master would give the girls a "field ahead," and the whole planetarium was in motion, giving the scholars a tolerably good idea of solar system, combining amusement with the study of an intricate and difficult science.

When travelling, put your watch and wallet at night into one of your stockings, and then place the stocking under your head. It will then be impossible to leave them, unless you have been accustomed to go barefoot.

From some cause or other, weddings are very bad for the eyes. The moment the knot is tied, the brides-maid and two aunts and a mother, rush into the hall bedroom, and have "a good cry," for hours together. Why a poor devil's promise to pay a "young woman's horrid bill" should operate thus on the "finer feelings of nature," puzzles us to divine.
